

Authors

Edvina Bešić is a university college professor of inclusive education research and didactics at the University College of Teacher Education Styria (Graz, Austria). Her research areas are inclusive education of students with special educational needs and migrant students, intercultural education, intersectionality, participatory research with children, and digitalization within inclusive education.

Contact: edvina.besic@phst.at Mihaela Brumen, researcher and teacher trainer at the University of Maribor. Her research interests are focused on learning and teaching languages to young learners.

Contact: mihaela.brumen@um.si

Štefan Chudý, Associate Professor, Director of the Institute of Pedagogy and Social Studies in the Faculty of Education, Palacký University in Olomouc. Chairman of the Council of the Pedagogy Doctoral Study Programme (English and Czech version) and supervisor of eight Ph.D. students (and former supervisor of seven Ph.D. graduates). Specialises in qualitative research and the philosophical and sociological aspects of the education of teachers starting out in a university setting. Author of more than 120 scientific papers and author or co-author of five monographs.

Contact: stefan.chudy@upol.cz

Monika Gigerl, Dr., is a professor at the University College of Teacher Education Styria. She has 26 years of teaching experience in primary and middle schools in inclusive settings. Based on her studies in applied ethics and social pedagogy, her main areas of work and research are humanities in primary education, human rights, inclusion and ethics.

Contact: monika.gigerl@phst.at Trinidad Hernández Recabarren is Lecturer at the School of Business and Economics (SBE) at Maastricht University. She has a Master of Science in International Business, with specialisation in Strategic Corporate Finance from Maastricht University, and is currently pursuing a Master of Advanced Studies in Economics at the Katholieke Universiteit Leuven. The research interests of Trinidad include behavioral economics, behavioral finance, education economics and business ethics. Trinidad Hernandez participated in the project “All Incl!”-publication which addresses LGBT+ perspectives in education across Europe.

Contact: trinidad.hernandezrecabarren@student.kuleuven.be

Elisabeth Herunter, Mag., is a linguist and a professor of language education at the University College of Teacher Education Styria. Prior to this, she gained professional, teaching and research experience in the field of speech, language, and communication disorders at the outpatient clinic for the deaf at the Hospital of St. John in Linz, colleges for speech therapy, and the universities of Salzburg and Graz. Her research interests are in the areas of inclusion and language education.

Contact: elisabeth.herunter@phst.at

Martin Hochegger, BEd, Teacher, social manager and managing director retired. Currently working as a consultant and enabler of social projects in Austria and Tanzania. Bruno Kreisky Human Rights Prize Winner 2022.

Contact: hoch7@live.de

Oliver Holz is professor at the Faculty of Economics and Business at KU Leuven. He has a Master degree in Educational Sciences, Psychology and Physical Education and a PhD in comparative education. He is member of the research group “Leuven Economics of Education Research (LEER)”. Topics as cross-country comparisons, gender education and diversity studies belong to his expertise. Oliver Holz is participant in and coordinator of different European projects. He is president of the annual conference IPE “International Perspectives in Education”. He published his work in different journals and books in different languages.

Contact: oliver.holz@kuleuven.be

Andrea Holzinger, Dr., was a professor at the University College of Teacher Education Styria and taught in the field of inclusive education in primary and secondary education. Her research focuses on the professionalisation of educators in elementary and primary school as well as on inclusive education.

Contact: Andrea.Holzinger@phst.at Erika Hvala, the assistant principal in the kindergarten. She is involved in several (inter) national projects at the pre- and primary school level.

Contact: erika.hvala@guest.arnes.si

Thilde Juul-Wiese is from Denmark, where she studied a teacher degree in English, social science and religion. Subsequently, she studied a master’s degree in Anthropology of Education and Globalisation at The Danish School of Education, Aarhus University, where she is now pursuing a Ph.D. in Educational Anthropology. Thilde’s Ph.D.-project is concerned with the mobility of preservice teachers, internationalisation of higher education, imaginaries, and hierarchies of knowledge.

Contact: thi@edu.au.dk

Ursula Komposch, Mag., is a professor at the University College of Teacher Education Styria. She has teaching experience in schools in inclusive settings. Her main area of work and research are diversity and inclusion, inclusive education and inclusive didactic.

Contact: Ursula.Komposch@phst.at Iva Koribská, Assistant Professor at the Institute of Pedagogy and Social Studies, where she works as an assistant. Focuses on the education of adults and on critical thinking in higher education. She teaches courses in Andragogy and Androdidactics, Human Resources Management and Critical Thinking. Also teaches foreign students in the Erasmus+ programme in the Productive School Environment and Introduction to Andragogy courses.

Contact: iva.koribska@upol.cz

Douglas Carlton McKnight recently finished his Ph.D. in German Literature and Language from Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. (USA). Currently, he is an independent researcher based in Graz, Austria. His research interests include twentieth-century German-language literature, modern European history, and Second Language Acquisition.

Contact: douglasmckn@gmail.com

Danping Peng, Assistant Professor at the Institute of Pedagogy and Social Studies, graduate from the English version of the Pedagogy programme. Specialises in school management and leadership, pedagogical diagnostics and comparative pedagogy (in English study programmes and the Erasmus+ programme), author of several research papers and a monograph on these issues. Works as the Erasmus+ coordinator at her institution.

Contact: danping.peng@upol.cz

Gonda Pickl, Dr., was a professor at the University College of Teacher Education Styria. She taught in the field of speech, language, and communication disorders in schools. Her research interests are in the areas of inclusion and professionalization.

Contact: gonda.pickl@gmx.at Jitka Plischke, Assistant Professor at the Institute of Pedagogy and Social Studies; teaches school didactics/general didactics and disciplines focused on intercultural education and education for pupils with a different mother tongue. Her research and publishing activities mainly concern issues of teacher training (e. g., teacher beliefs, teaching methods, novice teacher), education for pupils with a different mother tongue (author of two monographs), and the intercultural context of education. She supervises seven Ph.D. students in the Education doctoral study programme.

Contact: jitka.plischke@upol.cz

Justyna Ratkowska-Pasikowska, PhD in educational sciences; research with an emphasis on human sexuality, normativity and sexual minority, specialist in psychological help in the field of sexology, employed at the University of Lodz as an Assistant Professor; 14 years of experience in working in Higher Education, various publications related to literature, femininity, sexuality and gender.

Contact: Justyna.pasikowska@now.uni.lodz.pl

Vera Spangler studied a bilingual teacher degree in English and art at the University of Education, Freiburg, Germany and holds a master's degree in Anthropology of Education and Globalisation from the Danish School of Education, Aarhus University, Copenhagen, Denmark. Vera is now pursuing a PhD at the University of Surrey, Guildford, England. She is interested in the internationalisation of higher education, spatial and mobility theories, and creative methods.

Contact: v.spangler@surrey.ac.uk

Herbert Zoglowek, PhD, Professor of Sport Science (em.) at the University of Tromsø – Norway's Arctic University, and Visiting Professor at Akademia Pomorska in Slupsk, Poland. Author of several books and numerous articles within sports pedagogy, ball games and friluftsliv/outdoor education.

Contact: herbert.zoglowek@uit.no